Charles F. Hosley resides in Kealahou and Volcano, the bookends of District 5 and has resided on the Big Island since 1993. He is an active real estate broker and has been doing realty brokerage for 28 years. He has also operated the Kahauna Kona Farm for 12 years and is experienced in coffee and macadamia nut farming. He is very knowledgeable of the geography of the Big Island and is a certified tour guide.

Hosley was a premed student at the University of Rochester in New York, was an engineer on the Alaska Pipeline and holds a pilots license. Formerly Chairman of the West Hawaii Committee, he was an advocate for splitting Hawaii Island into two separate counties. He is a past director of the Laniakea Housing Corp. a non profit developer of elderly housing and a fund raiser for the Pacific Island Research Foundation raising funds for researching marlin migration.

Hosley has been active with the Kona Farmer's Alliance and has worked as a lobbyist for Jones Act Reform in the State Capitol.

He is married with no children.

He wants to represent District 5 which stretches through some of Hawaii's last undeveloped areas in Kau South Kona and Puna districts between Kainaliu and Mountain View. Keeping this environment pristine is very important. But bringing funding for desperately need road improvements, public transportation, the Kona and Kau Hospitals, utilization of wind generation and education are his priorities.
